MARITIME COMPACT.

Being an UNARMED ASSOCIATION of nations for the protection of the rights and commerce of nations that shall be neutral in time of war.

Whereas, the vexations and injuries to which the rights and commerce of neutral nations have been, and continue to be, exposed during the time of maritime war, render it necessary to establish a law of nations for the purpose of putting an end to such vexations and injuries, and to guarantee to the neutral nations the exercise of their just rights.

We, therefore, the undersigned powers, form themselves into an association and establish the following compact as a law of nations on the seas.

ARTICLE THE FIRST.

Definition of the rights of neutral nations.

The rights of nations, such as are exercised by them in their intercourse with each other in time of peace, are and of right ought to be, the rights of neutral nations at all times; because,

First, Those rights not having been abandoned by them remain with them.
Secondly, Because, those rights cannot become forfeited or void, in consequence of war breaking out between two, or more other nations.

A war of nation against nation being exclusively the act of nations that make the war, and not the act of neutral nations, cannot, whether considered in itself or in its consequences, destroy or diminish the rights of nations remaining in peace.

ARTICLE THE SECOND.

The ships and vessels of nations that rest neuter and at peace with the world during the war with other nations, have a right to navigate freely on the seas as they navigated before that war broke out, and to proceed to, and enter, the port or ports of any of the belligerent powers, with the consent of that power, without being seized, searched, visited, or any ways interrupted, by the nation or nations with which that nation is at war.

ARTICLE THE THIRD.

For the conservation of the aforesaid rights, WE, the undersigned powers, engaging to each other our sacred faith and honor, DECLARE,

That if any belligerent power shall seize, search, visit, or in any ways interrupt any ship or vessel belonging to the citizens or subjects of any of the powers composing this association, then each, and all the said undersigned powers will cease to import, and will not permit to be imported into the ports or dominions of any of the said undersigned powers, in any ship or vessel whatever, any goods, wares or merchandize, produced or manufactured in, or exported from, the dominions of the power so offending against the association hereby established and proclaimed.

ARTICLE THE FOURTH.

That all the ports appertaining to any and all of the powers composing this association shall be shut against the flag of the offending nation.

ARTICLE THE FIFTH.

That no remittance or payment in money, merchandize or bills of exchange, shall be made by any of the citizens or subjects of any of the powers composing this association, to the citizens or subjects of the offending nation, for the term of one year, or until reparation be made.—The reparation to be times the amount of the damages sustained.

ARTICLE THE SIXTH.

If any ship or vessel appertaining to any of the citizens or subjects of any of the powers composing this association shall be seized, searched, visited, or interrupted, by any belligerent nation, or be forcibly prevented entering the port of her destination, or be seized, searched, visited, or interrupted, in coming out of such port, or be forcibly prevented from proceeding to any new destination, or be infulted or visited by any agent from on board of any vessel of any belligerent power, the government or executive power of the nation to which the ship or vessel so seized, searched, visited or interrupted belong, shall, on evidence of the fact, make public proclamation of the same, and send a copy thereof to the government, or executive, of each of the powers composing this association, who shall publish the same in all the extent of his dominions, together with a declaration that at the expiration of days after the publication, the final articles of this association shall be put in execution against the offending nation.

ARTICLE THE SEVENTH.

If reparation be not made within the space of one year, the said proclamation shall be renewed for one year more and so on.

ARTICLE THE EIGHTH.

The association chuses for itself a flag to be carried at the mast-head conjointly with the national flag of each nation composing this association.

The flag of the association shall be composed of the same colours as compose the rainbow and arranged in the same order as they appear in that phenomenon.

ARTICLE THE NINTH.

And whereas it may happen that one or more of the nations composing this association may be, at the time of forming it, engaged in war, or become so in future, in that case, the ships and vessels of such nation shall carry the flag of the association bound round the mast, to denote that the nation to which the belongs is a member of the association and a respec-ter of the laws.

N. B. This distinction in the manner of carrying the flag is merely for the purpose, that neutral vessels having the flag at the mast-head, may be known at first sight.

ARTICLE THE TENTH.

And whereas it is contrary to the moral principles of neutrality and peace, that any neutral nation should furnish to the belligerent powers, or any of them, the means of carrying on war against each other; we, therefore, the powers, composing this association, declare, that we will, each one for itself, prohibit in our dominions the exportation or transportation of military stores, comprehending gun-powder, cannon, cannon-balls, firearms of all kinds, and all kinds of iron and steel weapons used in war, excluding therefrom all kinds of utensils and instruments used in civil or domestic life, and every other article that cannot, in its immediate state, be employed in war.

Having thus declared the moral motives of the foregoing article, we declare also the civil and political intention thereof, to wit,

That as belligerent nations have no right to visit or search any ship or vessel belonging to a nation at peace, and under the protection of the laws and government thereof, and as all such visit or search is an insult to the nation to which such ship or vessel belongs; and to the government of the same we, therefore,
the powers composing this association, will take the right of prohibition on ourselves; to whom it properly belongs, and by whom only it can be legally exercised, and not permit foreign nations, in a state of war, to usurp the right of legislating by proclamation for any of the citizens or subjects of the powers composing this association.

It is therefore, in order to take away all pretence of search or visit, which, by being offensive, might become a new cause of war, that we will provide laws, and publish them by proclamation, each in his own dominion, to prohibit the supplying, or carrying to, the belligerent powers, or either of them; the military stores, or articles before mentioned, an-nexing thereto a penalty to be levied or inflicted upon any persons within our feveral dominions, transgressing the same.
And we invite all persons, as well of the belligerent nations as of our own, or any other, to give information of any knowledge they may have of any transgression against the said law, that the offenders may be prosecuted.

By this conduct we restore the word contraband (contra and ban) to its true and original signification, which means against law, edict, or proclamation; and none but the government of a nation can have or can exercise, the right of making laws, edicts, or proclamations, for the conduct of its citizens or subjects.

Now, we, the undersigned powers, declare the aforesaid articles to be a law of nations, at all times, or until a congress of nations shall meet to form some law more effectual.

And we do recommend that immediately on the breaking out of war between any two or more nations, that deputies be appointed by all the neutral nations, whether members of this association or not, to meet in congress, in some central place, to take cognizance of any violation of the rights of neutral nations.

Signed, &c.

For the purpose of giving operation to the aforesaid plan of an unarmed association, the following paragraph was subjoined:

It may be judged proper for the order of business, that the association of nations have a president for a term of years, and the presidency to pass by rotation, to each of the parties composing the association.

In that case, and for the sake of regularity, the first president to be the executive power of the most northerly nation composing the association, and his deputy or minister at the congress to be president of the congress—and the next most northerly to be vice-president, who shall succeed to the presidency, and so on. The line determining the geographical situation of each to be the latitude of the capital of each nation.

If this method be adopted, it will be proper that the first president be nominally constituted in order to give rotation to the rest. In that case the following article might be added to the foregoing, viz. The constitution of the association nominates the EMPEROR PAUL, to be first president of the association of nations for the protection of neutral commerce and securing the freedom of the seas.

MR. BRADFORD,

I AM a little surprised to see in your paper, a piece under the signature of THOMAS BODLEY, intended as an answer to the address to Judge Thurlton. I, sir, claim the privileges, and manly sentiments of independence, which belong to the citizen of a free country. I would not be the base tool of any person. Without good cause, I would not abandon a man, who had treated me honorably—who had used me with the candor of familiarity, and the open confidence of friendship. Much less would I, without any the least ground or provocation, attempt to traduce his fame, and insult his feelings, by ill-adviced effusions in the public prints. But, Mr. Bradford, the piece in your paper, to which my respect for public opinion only compels me to make reply, merits but a few words.

On reading Mr. Bodley's answer, I purposed exposing the flimsiness of the undertaking at length; but the little attention I think due him, and the high opinion I entertain of public discernment, oblige me to be very short.

Mr. Bodley has exhibited a grand mark of his penetration, when he discovered, that if the address contains a charge, it is, that Judge Thurlton gave Mr. Thomas January a conditional promise of his vote! He speaks too of "satisfactory certificates," to be produced on the part of Mr. January, as one condition of that promise. I say of this only, that it is new to me, and favors much of a fiction of his own brain. He states, he is "certain Judge Thurlton & Gen. R. Todd were public and uniform in their declarations, that they would not vote for Mr. Lewis, because" &c. What does this mean? It may mean a great deal, something, or nothing. But, the publicity and uniformity of such declarations, in the sense he would intimate, I do deny.—I feel a sentiment above injuring a man, when his questionable conduct does not affect me. But, as Mr. Bodley has hastily introduced in his answer, a statement, which, like most else, he relates, is altogether irrelevant to the case in question, I am constrained to tell the world, it is absolutely false. It here follows: "and proposed that in case Judge Lewis voted for him (Mr. January) we would determine by lot, which of us should name a sum that he would give or take, and let the other make his election." If Mr. Bodley's own and personal declaration be good and sufficient evidence against himself, he did agree conditionally to resign in favor of Mr. January for a satisfactory compensation.

I truly said in the address, the mortification of disappointment had worn away; and I hope the public are not, as Mr. Bodley would have them, so dull as not to make a distinction between the resentment attending disappointment by unfair means, and the reasonable and just sense of an injury. The former hurries and precipitates in the moment of heat and passion; the latter remains when passion is gone, and grows more forcible upon deliberate reflection.

If Judge Thurlton is hurt in his reputation or feelings, it is; if I may use a judicial phrase, damnum absque injuria; it was son assault demesne.

Whatever is stated in the address as matter of fact, I am prepared and willing to establish substantially as such. As to the inferences from those facts, it is matter of opinion only. All have liberty to judge of them as they please. But, I said I would be short.

I cannot suppress the smile of contempt, when Mr. Bodley remarks: "I am sorry the gentleman troubled the public on the occasion." What a pity he did not reflect, that a pitiful object creeping from under the wing of a great man, is not always the most pleasing spectacle to the public eye!

ASA K. LEWIS.

P. S. I desire not to continue a newspaper contest, which were endless. Therefore I shall pay no attention to any publication, which may hereafter appear on this subject. What I have advanced is the truth, and I will be ready when called on, to make it appear.

LEXINGTON, MAY 24.

Not having received any confirmation of the account published last week, of the negroes rising in North-Carolina, we are induced to state how we got the information.—The note published, was written on the margin of a Warrenton paper of the 25th April. The same paper of the 2d May, has been since received, which does not mention the subject. Who the writer of the note was we shall not attempt to say, but hope his next communication will at least contain the truth, and not put us to the necessity of contradicting our own publications.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Philadelphia, to his friend in this town, dated May 6.

"There is now nearly a certainty that war is again declared between England and France. It is not exactly known what produces this dreadful measure—conjecture places it on the overbearing strides of the first Consul of France. Since I began this letter the news of actual declaration has reached us."

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in New-Orleans, to his friend in this place, dated 21st April, 1803.

"DEAR SIR,

"Since I had the pleasure of writing you from Natchez, I have safely come down the river to this place, and have been here two weeks without accomplishing much business—indeed there is no such thing as selling merchandise at present; and many goods can be bought much cheaper here than in Philadelphia. The French adventurers who are coming over in crowds with the idea of making rapid fortunes are most sadly disappointed; they are obliged for their own subsistence, and for the purpose of paying the freight, duties, &c. to raise money, they send their goods to auction, and are oftentimes obliged to sacrifice them at one fourth the first cost.—Such is the gloom in the mercantile horizon, and I scarcely think the political one is much better. What will be the fate of this as well as of all the western country, I am at a loss to imagine, though I think they depend one on the other, and that they must stand or fall together. There can be no doubt but that a considerable body of French troops will very shortly arrive here—the prefect is turning the custom house, store houses, rope walk, and even the assembly room into barracks for soldiers—in the mean time, he finds considerable difficulty in making contracts for provisions, &c. The American merchants have refused to enter into any engagements with him, as he withes a credit of one and two months.—The French and Spanish settlers are equally backward. After the example of Le Clerck's bills in St. Domingo, I do not at all wonder at this refusal; but I am afraid that a requisition will be the consequence as soon as General Victor arrives. You can easily imagine what will be the situation of American produce in that case.

"The conduct of the American government in regard to New Orleans, has degraded us in the opinion of every nation. I lodge in a French Hotel, they laugh us to scorn, and openly say it is the intention of the French government to possess all the Western Country. I always despised the idle boasts of the great nation, and trust they are mistaken. But what does our executive mean to do? Does he wish to raise the passions of the Western People, until they are forced to throw themselves into the arms of France? He surely takes the only means of accomplishing such a project. Nothing but depriving a free people of their means of subsistence, can make them think of disuniting themselves to be governed by a haughty French Prefect, and to see the bayonets of Bonaparte's myrmidons glittering in their towns. The people of the Western Country, have as yet acted with calmness and propriety—I hope they will continue so to do.—They ought to remember that it is a President of their own particular choosing, who treats them thus—that it is their own beloved heroes of Democracy and no taxes, who support him, and that it is the Federalists of the Atlantic states alone, who wish and endeavour to maintain the rights of the Western trade. I think there can be no doubt, but that the French mean to keep possession of Louisiana—they are endeavouring to purchase the Floridas also of Spain—we shall then be in a manner surrounded.

"Dispatches from our government arrived here about a week ago; the object of them was the opening of the deposit; but whether they contain any dispatches from Spain or their minister at Washington, is not known. However our consul here was told by the governor, that nothing would be done at present with regard to opening the port;—it will therefore rest with the French, who no doubt occasioned it to be shut."

The foregoing was sent us for publication by the gentleman to whom it was addressed. So far as facts are related, we think the extract of importance, and thank the gentleman for communicating it; but that part which attempts to throw odium on our government, must either prove the ignorance of the writer, or an unjustifiable malignancy, that is pleased to adopt every pretext that presents itself, to bring the executive into disrepute.

In the extract we find sentiments something similar to those contained in the piece signed "A Western American," and we acknowledge our surprise on being requested to publish them, as the reception that publication met with, is within the recollection of every one. We have before asserted, and now repeat it, that the citizens of Kentucky have the fullest confidence in the present administration—therefore any attempt made by the enemies of the executive, "to raise the passions of the western people," against the government, will prove abortive.

The situation of Europe, makes it very doubtful whether a body of French troops will shortly arrive at New-Orleans; but it appears probable, that the measures adopted by our government, may ultimately place Louisiana in the possession of the United States.

The letter from which the extract is taken, is dated the 21st April; therefore, the dispatches stated to have arrived about a week before, could not be those forwarded from the Spanish Minister, as they left the city of Washington on the 19th.

Sir W. Pultney, in the British House of Commons, on the 15th of March, on a debate for embodying the militia, observed in reply to the secretary of war, that "the right hon. gentleman cannot have forgot what the militia of America did against us; we sent out a very great regular force, but we were beat, and that too by militia."

A sloop from Boston, had failed for Mobile, with Dinmore and suite, on a mission from the United States to the Choctaw nation.

LONDON, March 23.

Our preparations have produced the effect of stopping the sailing of the Louisiana expedition, and of the Dutch squadron, under Vice Admiral Hartfinck. On Friday last a courier arrived at the French ambassadors at the Hague with orders, that the squadron for Louisiana should remain in port, and that the troops should be cantoned at Helvoet till further orders. The expedition was to have failed to-day.

When the dates of the affair at the Cape of Good Hope are examined, it would appear that the present preparations for war have not been too precipitate. From the time the dispatches were sent out to forbid the surrender, we may reckon on five months difference with the French government about some thing or other, independent of Malta, which appears a more recent case of dispute.

Like master, like man. Talleyrand, as well as his sovereign, can be infolent to the Ministers of those states degraded by their French connection, or weakened by french intrigues; but he was far from approving of the violence offered towards the Representative of the King of the first Nation upon earth; he, therefore, with all humility, entreated his Master to make it up. His maxim is, that until France has a navy equal to that of Britain the Chief Consul must sink his pretensions to be the modern Alexander, and content himself with respect to England, to act a-la-Philippe. His advice was however, was so ill received, that he gave in his resignation, and for twenty-four hours rumor appointed him different successors, such as Segur, Otto Galliard, &c. but while the public were thus busy, Bonaparte invited Talleyrand to dine with him in private, and after some explanation, returned him his Ministerial Portfeuille, and he is, at present, again the first favorite of the First Consul.

PHILADELPHIA, May 5.

Extract from Washington City, to the editor, dated March 2, 1801.

"An express has reached this place, and it is said to have brought dispatches from our ambassador at London, containing advices of the actual renewal of war in Europe."

An express messenger arrived in this city from New-York yesterday morning, who left New-York the preceding night at 9 o'clock. The celerity of his journey was retarded by a suspicion excited as he passed through Jersey that he was evading pursuit, and he was detained until the production of his letters for this city and the nature of his mission caused him to be permitted to pursue his journey, which nevertheless he performed in 11 hours. The advices which he brought, are, that war had actually recommenced in Europe and had been formally declared by Great Britain on the 25th March.

From the Philadelphia Gazette.

WAR DECLARED!!!

An express arrived in town this morning, at half past ten o'clock, from New-York, which place it left at 9 last evening, and brings the following important intelligence, contained in a letter dated "Thursday evening, May 3."

"I beg leave to acquaint you that war was declared between France and England on the 25th March—this you may depend on, as I have sent this by express."

NEW-YORK, May 3.

Half past 12, P. M.

"We have just seen a letter dated at Boston, on the evening of the 29th ult. It comes from a merchant at the first respectability, and contains the following:

"By this evening's eastern mail, a letter is received from the captain of a vessel arrived at Portland, in 34 days from Liverpool, who says, that after he failed he was boarded by an English cruiser, & was informed by the officer, that war was actually declared between England and France. If this is true, the account will soon be confirmed."

Extract of a letter from a respectable house in Bourdeaux, to a gentleman in Boston, dated March 26.

"There has been for a few days past, serious appearances of an immediate war, between this country and England. How the business will terminate is not yet known. It is however worthy of note, that Bonaparte observed lately to Mr. Livingston, that if such an event should take place, the peace of America would not be disturbed on the part of France. This is reported, and I believe upon good authority."

Extract of a letter from a respectable merchant at Bourdeaux, dated March 27.

"War is the order of the day—Malta the ostensible bone of contention—&c. the general opinion is, that an actual state of hostilities cannot be far distant. My private sentiments however are that an accommodation will take place.—France is too much exposed in her commerce, and too feeble in her fleets, to take the bull by the horns."

PHILADELPHIA, May 7.

A gentleman who left Norfolk on Wednesday morning, informs that a pilot had arrived on Tuesday, who had boarded a ship from Liverpool bound to Baltimore, the captain of which informed him, that hostilities had commenced between England and France, and that he read the declaration of war, when on board.

Extract of a letter from the Post-Master at Baltimore, to Colonel Patton, Post-Master Philadelphia.

"Baltimore, May 5.
"Capt. Dashiell has arrived here this morning from Liverpool, which place he left the 1st April, and brings accounts of hostilities having actually taken place between England and France. Capt. Dashiell is now at the fort; and I receive this information from Capt. Snow, who had seen and conversed with Captain D. on that subject. I received this at the moment of sealing your bag.

"Yours,

"CHARLES BURRELL."

From Mr. Bryden, Fountain-Inn to Mr. Kitchen.

"Baltimore, May 5.
"At this moment there are several gentlemen in my room who arrived in a pilot boat from Norfolk. In coming up they spoke a vessel in a short passage from England, who informed that WAR had been declared against France, and an embargo laid on all French vessels in the English ports."

WASHINGTON CITY, May 9.

According to the representation of Capt. Rielly, arrived yesterday from Corruna; it appears, that the apprehensions of war with the United States, created a great panic in the Spanish court. While he lay there, an express arrived at Madrid with dispatches, to be put on board a fast sailing king's vessel, with orders to sail immediately, for any port in the United States. In less than half an hour, a Spanish brig was under way. This circumstance excited much consternation; and the general impression was, that a war could only be averted by the speedy transmission of conciliatory dispatches.

It is well recollected, that this brig arrived some time since at Baltimore, and that the contents of her dispatches were assurances of a continuation of the right of deposit at New Orleans.

By the brig Favorite, Capt. Fryer, from Bourdeaux, letters are received, which announce the arrival of Mr. Monroe at Havre. [Nor. pap.]

NATCHES, April 23.

On Wednesday last a court of Oyer and Terminer was held in this city under a special commission from the governor, by the supreme judges, for the trial of certain persons charged with the murder of an Indian, on the 2d instant. The grand jury having found a bill to that effect against capt. John Merryfield, of Kentucky, his trial took place on the following day, when, after much investigation, and arguments of some length by counsel on both sides, the jury brought in their verdict not guilty.

We some time ago learned with concern, that the death of the Indian above mentioned, had occasioned some discontent among his countrymen, in this neighborhood; and even provoked them to hold out threats of indiscriminate retaliation on some white person, should not the law efficaciously redress the injury. We are however happy to observe, notwithstanding the acquittal of Capt. M. that the good understanding between us, and those of the nation who continue to visit us, does not yet appear to have suffered any interruption.

DAY: A PASTORAL. MORNING.

IN the barn the tenant cock,
Close to Partlet perch'd on high,
Briskly crows (the Shepherd's clock!)
Jocund that the morn'g's nigh.

Swiftly from the mountain's brow
Shadows nurs'd by Night, retire,
And the peeping sun-beam now,
Paints with gold the village spire.

Phylomel forsakes the thorn,
Plaintive where she prates at night;
And the lark, to meet the morn,
Soars beyond the Shepherd's sight.

From the low roof'd cottage ridge
See the chattering swallow spring:
Darting thro' the one arch'd bridge,
Quick the dips her dappled wing.

Now the pine tree's waving top Gently greets the morning gale!
Kiddings, now, begin to crop
Daisies in the dewy vale.

From the balmy sweets, uncloy'd, (Restless till her task is done)
Now the busy bee's employ'd Sipping dew before the sun.

Trickling thro' the creviced rock,
Where the limpid stream distills,
Sweet refreshment waits the flock
When 'tis fun-drove from the hills.

Colin, for the promis'd corn, (Ere the harvest hopes are ripe)
Anxious hears the huntman's horn, Boldly founding, drown his pipe.

Sweet, O sweet, the warbling thrush,
On the white emblossom'd spray!
Nature's universal song
Echoes to the rising day.

DIVERSITY.

THERE lived in New-Jersey, at the period of our revolutionary war, a remarkable dwarf, who, though from twenty to thirty years old, and possessing a common degree of understanding, was only three feet high, and proportionably small in other respects. This manikin was introduced to General Washington, who asked him whether he was a whig or a tory: to which the little gentleman (strutting himself up) replied, that he had not hitherto taken a very active part on either side.

WILLIAM WEST.

MONTEZUMA, A Fine Large JACK ASS,

WILL stand at my farm, one and a half miles from Lexington, and will be let to mares at 10 dollars the season; payable in Cash or Hemp, delivered in Lexington.—Or any person or persons putting five mares by the season may discharge the same by one mule colt, (in good order, coming from a mare 15 hands high) delivered at five or six months old.

The season to commence the 20th April, and end the 20th October.

MONTEZUMA is about three and a half years old, near or quite 13 hands high, and is of the large breed in Mexico. He was travelled when two years old 1000 miles to Natheze, and from thence to this state, which no doubt has been prejudicial to his growth.

Mules are produced in Mexico to 14 1-2 hands in height, from this strain or breed of Jacks, and small mares, running at large in the woods without grain. They will sell in the Southern States for more money than large draught horses, and when shipped to the West Indies, are sold at double that value. They can be raised as cheap as a steer, and travelled to South Carolina, or Georgia, for one dollar expence for twenty that a horse can. There is much less danger from distempers. Kentucky has no competition in mule raising but from the New-England states; and there they are not raised to any size, the climate being too cold, and all authors assert, that the ass flourishes best in moderate climates. The rage for breeding horses here, will reduce the price of any market, which can't be done in mules for a century, as the West India market has never yet been fully supplied.

ROBERT BARR. April 15th, 1803.

* * A fabulous report prevails that mares will not breed from the horse, after mules—authors contradict the report—and any person may see a mare on my farm now with foal of her eighth colt, after having bred a mule.
